CHURCHILL AND ROOSEVELT PLEDGE TO STALIN A FULL SCALE INVASION ACROSS ENGLISH CHANNEL TO STRIKE A DEATH BLOW TO HITLERISM; TEHRAN CONFERENCE RESULT

Soviet Premier Given What He Has Been Demanding For Two Years

PINCERS FOR GERMANY Hope to "Banish Scourge of War for Many Generations"

By Pierre J. Hiss I. N. S. Staff Correspondent CAIRO, Dec. 6—(INS)—A full-scale invasion across the English Channel by American and British armies to strike a death blow at Hitlerism was disclosed today as the chief pledge given to Marshal Joseph Stalin by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in an epoch-making conference at Teheran.

The historic four-day conference which followed a meeting in Cairo that brought Mr. Roosevelt and Premier Churchill together with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China gave the Soviet premier what he has been demanding for the past two years—the opening of a second front in western Europe to ensure that the armies of Nazi Germany will be ground to blood and dust beneath an Allied pincer.

Highlights of the dramatic session which for the first time brought the Anglo-American leaders face to face with the political and diplomatic chief of the Soviet Union follow:

1—The United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia have now laid full plans for prosecution of the war and administration of the peace that comes afterward in a manner that will "banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

2—Nazi Germany will be attacked "from the east, the west and the south" so that within the earliest possible time the whole tyrannical military machine created by Adolf Hitler will be destroyed utterly and in its entirety.

3—The Reich's sole alternative to complete destruction will be for the German people to throw the Nazi regime out of office and sue for immediate and unconditional surrender.

4—The satellite nations of Nazi Germany, absorbed into the European new order by the wilful deception or guilelessness of their leaders were offered an opportunity to save themselves before it is too late. They will be welcome if they "choose to come into the world family of democratic nations."

5—Complete agreement was reached among the leaders of the three nations as to the scope and timing of the monumental blows planned against Germany, and the attacks to be made will be "relentless and increasing."

Marshal Stalin returned to Moscow from his first visit outside the Soviet union in 31 years and from his initial meeting with President Roosevelt.

BOY FOR MITCHELLS A son was born last evening to Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell, of Bridgeview, in Harrison Hospital.

3 POWERS OUTLINE WAR, PEACE POLICY

CAIRO, Dec. 6—(INS)—Here is the full text of the declaration signed by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at the close of their Teheran Conference: "A declaration of the three powers: "We, the President of the United States, the Prime Minister of Great Britain and the Premier of the Soviet Union, have met these four days past in this capital of our ally, Iran, and have shaped and confirmed our common policy.

"We expressed our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that follows. "As to the war, our military staffs have joined our round-table discussions and we have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces. We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations which will be undertaken from the east, the west and the south.

"The common understanding which we here reached guarantees that victory will be ours. "As to the peace, we are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all of the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the people of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations.

"With our diplomatic advisers we have surveyed the problems of the future. We shall seek the co-operation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and in mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny, slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into the world family of democratic nations.

"No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea and their war plants from the air. Our attacks will be relentless and increasing.

"From these friendly conferences we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may live free and untouched by tyranny, according to their varying desires and own consciences.

"We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose.

"(Signed at Teheran, December the First, 1943) Franklin D. Roosevelt, Joseph Stalin, Winston Churchill."

Car Slightly Damaged In A Hit-Run Accident

LANGHORNE, Dec. 6—The car operated by "Tony" Fiord, of Woodbourne, was damaged slightly last evening in an alleged hit-run accident.

Fiord gave chase to the machine which is said to have struck his car on Bellevue avenue at eight o'clock, and unsuccessful in getting the driver to halt after a two-mile chase he made note of the license number and turned same over to Pennsylvania State Police at South Langhorne barracks.

The license number given Pvt. Botwka by Fiord was that issued or the car owned by Robert Forrester, of this borough. Investigation proved, stated the officer, that Forrester's son, Allen Forrester, was using the car last evening prior to leaving late last night for training with the U. S. Navy at Sampson, N. Y. Names of other occupants of the Forrester car at the time of the alleged hit-run accident, according to Pvt. Botwka were: Howard Carls, Mary Ridge, Langhorne; Winfield Miller, South Langhorne; Catherine Ridge, Narberth; and Leonard Koerwer.

VETERAN EMPLOYEES HERE AID WAR WORK

5 Rohm & Haas Workers Have Combined Service Record of 140 Years

AID WITH PLEXIGLAS

A quintet of employees of Rohm & Haas Company, who have a combined service record with the company of 140 years, are aiding in the march to victory by sticking closely to their task of making materials used in Allied bombers.

The five, Peter Hoffman, Fred Pfirrmann, Charles Kallenbach, Frank Pfaffenrath and Kurt Werner, have been with the local firm so long that they almost regard the plant here as home. They continue to busy themselves daily with materials that go into the plexiglas noses of the bombers.

Collectively they probably know as much about the action of the chemicals they work with as anybody outside the laboratory technicians, and they love the business. Their talk is easy and familiar about oropon and formopon and sulphur dioxide and titanium potassium oxylate.

Some of their sons or daughters have punched time clocks at the big chemical plant. Some of them have worked for the company in Chicago or at Charles Lennig & Co., a Rohm & Haas associate at Bridesburg.

They remember early days, before the advance of modern practice, when some of the acids they worked with left their fingertips so sore they had to hold their knives and forks far down in the arch between thumb and palm. Help was hard to get in those days.

"I remember I held down many jobs that year," said Kurt Werner, who had come to work there in 1917. "I was a laborer, chauffeur. I pitched in to unload cars and did whatever came along. I was No. 15 to be hired and we were just like a family."

Werner has a daughter who is an Army nurse in Africa. His son works at Lennig's. Kurt, himself, is foreman of the sulphur dioxide department.

Frank Pfaffenrath, foreman in the oropon department, came from the

NEWSPAPERS LAUNCH CAMPAIGN TO SALVAGE 2,000,000 ADDITIONAL TONS OF WASTE PAPER NEEDED IN WAR EFFORT

In their third united effort to remedy the deficiency in a vital war material, the nation's newspapers will launch today an intensive campaign to salvage 2,000,000 additional tons of waste paper urgently needed for war production, essential civilian goods and for the shipments of ammunition and food to the fighting fronts.

Because of the failure of waste paper collections to meet the current demand, 25 paper mills are now shut down and 100 are operating on a part-time basis. Waste paper collections must be increased by one-third to put these mills back on normal operation.

Under the direction of the Newspaper Committee of the U. S. Victory Waste Paper Campaign, formed at the urgent solicitation of Donald M. Nelson, War Production chief, who recalled the work which newspapers did in helping to collect 6,000,000 tons of scrap metal last year, newspaper executives throughout the country will form new committees or strengthen existing set-ups to draw into production every pound of waste paper possible.

In announcing the campaign, which has as its slogan, "Save a Bundle a Week—Save Some Boy's Life," the committee placed great stress on the fact that this campaign will not be a repetition of the first waste paper drive, which created an overabundance at a period when the demand for paper started to slacken. Some portion of the paper collected in the first drive had to be burned and the dealers suffered from a break in the market price.

However, according to the Newspaper Committee, the situation is vastly different today. The demand for paper is far ahead of the current supply; every pound collected in the new campaign will be eagerly sought by mills; and prices to be paid by mills to waste paper dealers will be guaranteed until February 15th.

The newspapers are calling upon all sources of supply from office buildings to households to conserve every scrap of paper that comes into their hands. Newspapers should be folded flat and tied in bundles about twelve inches high.

Magazines and books should be tied in bundles about eighteen inches high.

Corrugated and cardboard boxes and cartons should be flattened and tied in bundles about twelve inches high.

Wastebasket paper, such as wrappers, envelopes, etc., should be flattened and packed down in a box or bundle.

Every conceivable instrument of collection will be encouraged by the newspapers, ranging from school children to the Boy Scouts, Civilian Volunteer Defense Organizations, Advertising Clubs, American Legion and other civic, fraternal and business organizations. Local committees are working out the best possible methods for collection and transportation to the waste dealers' plants.

The war time uses of waste paper are highly essential and numerous. Waste paper goes into containers for ammunition, army rations and blood plasma. Into

Hospital Offers Nursing Course

In an effort to relieve the acute shortage in the field of nursing, the Stetson Hospital of Philadelphia has established an intensive course of training to qualify women to care for the sick. The course is open to ambitious women 18 years of age and over who wish to do their part in the present emergency and who are looking forward to an assurance of income in the period after the war.

The hospital emphasizes that its course of one year gives strict and thorough training to qualify as licensed attendants, and is also designed to fit those who graduate to take a proper place in the life of their community.

A grammar school education is required, high school being preferred. For those who have acquired their education in Europe, the decision as to possible language handicap will be determined in an interview. In general, however, such handicap can be overcome, and students who wish to pursue high school studies may have their work arranged to permit attendance at night.

The tuition covers 125 hours of classroom activities and students have their own instructress, who also supervises their work in the hospital ward. The course is comprehensive, covering medical, surgical, maternity and children's departments as well as dispensary and out-patients' clinics.

Maintenance and laundry are furnished, living quarters and food are excellent and surroundings congenial. The student is employed eight hours a day, six days a week and at the end of one year is qualified for the State Board Examination at Harrisburg, becomes a licensed attendant and is registered. Her opportunities in the private-duty and institutional fields are good.

"Jack" Haas Slightly Hurt; Hit by Automobile

"Jack" Haas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haas, of Halmerville, was slightly injured when he is said to have crossed Bristol Pike in the path of an approaching car last evening.

The boy was treated at Harriman Hospital for abrasions of the leg. It was stated by hospital officials that the driver, Gordon Harris, of Crofton, reported that the boy had suddenly attempted to cross the highway in front of his machine, and he (Harris) could not stop in time. Harris took the lad to the hospital, and after treatment Haas returned to his home.

TURNING THE TABLES

As the war in Europe increases in intensity, it is clear that Hitler has a struggle on two fronts as definitely as if a mighty Allied army was advancing in France to meet the advancing Russians. One front is on the battlefields where the Nazis meet defeats that constantly grow more disastrous. The other front is one of minds and nerves within the Reich. Fear is bringing Hitler defeat, too, on that front.

The Nazi Fuehrer has employed all the arts of psychological warfare to achieve his ends. At the height of his military glory he did everything possible to throw consternation into the ranks of his opponents through terror and threat of terror. That brought people and governments to his standard with a minimum of effort.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. The Allies are now turning on Germany all the psychological ammunition that creates fear.

Germany is tormented as never before by the fear of defeat. Every infantry advance in Italy and every exploding bomb accent the corroding consternation in the heart of the Reich. Terror is amplified by a growing realization that there is nothing to be done. The end of that is surrender, a mass psychology the Nazis are doing everything they can to combat.

RECONVERSION OF PLANTS

Among the tasks which business must face are conversion of plants, now devoted to war production, to peacetime use, and the determination of the order in which such plants will be allowed to produce their normal or new products as materials and facilities become available.

Edwin G. Booz, of New York City, president of the Association of Consulting Management Engineers, said recently in an interview that, before thorough planning can be done, officials first must be told what is going to be done with surpluses, the manner in which materials are to be made available to manufacturers in the transition period and what products will be produced in the period after Germany's defeat.

"You can't run business without capital," Mr. Booz emphasized. "The government is taking earnings of business away at such a rate that business is not being allowed to save capital to convert its plants back. If that trend continues as it is going now, it will have serious effects on re-employment of the 11,000,000 men who are in the armed services."

Mr. Booz stressed the fact that some equitable method must be devised to give those plants which may remain in war production longer than others an equal chance in regaining their civilian markets.

If Germany should fall soon, with the result that the demand for war materials would be considerably decreased, the problem of conversion of plants and the order in which such conversion should take place would cry for immediate solution. It would be unfortunate if much unemployment resulted because no plans for the order of reconversion of plants had been made.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol April 27, 1882. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

An attempt to wreck a train was made on the Amboy Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Burlington on Monday. A plank had been placed along a rail to do its work. A man who was observed near the scene, was arrested. He was placed in jail to await the action of the company.

Harry Bailey, a son of Joseph Bailey, met with a serious accident last Sunday afternoon. A couple of boys were leading the horses of J. M. Boileau along the roadside when one of them got away, and Harry was assisting in catching him. In passing the other the animal gave him a heavy kick in the face, breaking his jaw, and knocking out some of his back teeth. A front tooth had to be subsequently extracted in order to administer nourishment. He now lies in a critical condition.

The old Cabeen property on Otter street was discovered to be on fire last Sunday morning. The America Hose Co. was promptly on the ground and extinguished the flames before they got under full headway. This house is a noted resort for tramps and it was evidently set on fire by them.

The Langhorne Beacon, after three weeks' suspension, again appears.

By a switch being left open last Sunday afternoon near the A. M. E. Church, a freight train ran into some passenger cars and did considerable damage.

David M. Hess, of Philadelphia, has purchased the Hutchinson property, situated on the Beaver dam road, from Mrs. Sarah S. Sheron for $18,000.

George Rose's carriage sale, last Saturday at Newportville, amounted to about $7,000. Fifty-three carriages were sold.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE
Clem and I talked about the suspects then. Two colored housemen had supported Reginald's alibi of being in his room at the hour of the murder. And Elsie Eustace, Gladys Newcomb, Luke Cramer, Peter Gibson, and Countess Pamela Castagna were out of the picture, according to Clem.

"That Gibson guy was Hornblower's suspect Grade-A for a day or two," Clem went on. "But Gibson had an alibi, too. He had dinner with a local lawyer at The Charlton-Arms at seven o'clock and, when they finished, they went into the cocktail lounge, had a couple of drinks while they wound up some business deal. The lawyer left just as a Miss Stellita Carlisle came to keep her date with Gibson. . . . That was quarter after nine. . . . Miss Carlisle and Gibson sat there drinking until a little after eleven. Gibson took the dame home, came back to the hotel and was strolling about the grounds, smoking, when he heard your screams. Iron-bound alibi for murder time. Checked by police. All in order. Barman, dining-room waiters, lounge waiters, bellhops, cigarette girl, the lawyer and Miss Carlisle. He couldn't have done it."

"Same with the Cramer fellow. He was in Philadelphia, sick in bed all day Saturday with the flu. Got up and dressed at five-thirty, planning to catch the six o'clock plane for Washington. Made it as far as the taxi-stand in front of his hotel, took the taxi to the doctor's instead of to the air-port. Had his throat mopped up and went back to the hotel to bed. Got to worrying about letting Pamela Keith down on his promise to spend the weekend in Washington, thought he'd make an effort to go. Got dressed about nine-thirty, planning to take the ten o'clock plane, made it as far as the lobby, called Pam, told her he was just too sick to travel and beat it back to bed. Acutely sick about midnight, doc came over and gave him a hypo to make him sleep. He was just drifting off when Sandra phoned. . . . Alibi checked all around. Same with the Countess. No motive, and besides she's not feet enough of foot."

Clem paused for a few seconds; then went on rapidly: "But I'm not so sure about that daughter of Pamela Keith. Sneaky, high-hat, elusive little bimbo! Said she was at the club all evening, but nobody remembered seeing her from about nine till midnight. Said she was on the golf course, alone. Mighty fishy! Besides, Charlotte Cunningham, that pretty blonde domestic dish, heard Sandra quarreling with her mother early in the afternoon, before the debut. Her mother said something like this—I don't remember the words exactly. . . . I can make it so Victor Corliss wouldn't marry if you were the last girl in the world. Don't think I can't, and won't. You just wait and see. And Sandra screamed back: You do anything to break up Vic and me and I'll—I'll kill myself. So maybe Sandra decided it would be more fun to kill her mother instead. I say mother. Wouldn't it be funny if ton tonight. The ferry boat conveys passengers who desire to attend, free.

The Bristol Water Company are laying street mains down Pond street from Dorrance to Penn.

Elwood Doron is building two new houses on Lafayette street.

A special meeting of council was held on Monday evening last. The street committee reported that $4,000 would be sufficient for the improvement of the streets for the coming year. The committee on public property thought that $1500 would put the wharves in good repair, the other committees made no estimates of the amount they would need. Mr. Hoguet made a motion to rent the Mill street wharf to Capt. Cone for five years at $300 per annum, the wharf to be kept in good repair and a shed to be erected similar to the one at Burlington at the expense of the lessee. The terms, Mr. Hoguet was informed, were acceptable to Capt. Cone. . . . On motion of Mr. Lyndall the street committee was instructed to have the two street lamps on Locust street and the one at the junction of Locust and Otter placed where they will give the most light.

A mill for the manufacture of wall paper is to be erected at Bristol, provided the funds can be raised.

The finance committee of council in determining the rate of tax will be governed largely in fixing the rate by the consideration of whether any permanent improvement will be made to the streets. . . .

Must Prepare Now For Lasting Peace

air, although that will come. Rights of the sea are already a vital question."

Dr. Oman said he feels Gibraltar, the Suez Canal, and Panama Canal should be held by all nations with equal rights of use. They should be "world control points."

Continuing, Dr. Oman said: "We must also be concerned about any aggressor nations. We didn't worry about Ethiopia, Korea, or China, but when Hawaii and the Philippines were attacked, it brought home to us the new world situation, to which we should have been awake years before."

"It is only a chance that China is not fighting against us for the Oriental Exclusion Act hurt a cultured and proud nation deeply."

Dr. Oman recently learned the truth concerning the Senate's part in the last peace, President Wilson, he told the Grangers, took to the Senate the proposed peace terms, which they re-wrote. He then took these revised terms to the conference and they were accepted by the other nations. The Senate then refused to confirm the treaty, and later wrote its own much more generous peace terms with Germany.

Concluding his address, Dr. Oman said: "If the coming peace is just and wise, it will last forever. If it is a selfish peace, it will end in another war."

Mrs. James P. McLaughlin, of Tyro Hall Grange, gave a reading, "Minty's Christmas," and Joseph Parry, of Pineville Grange, read Paul Lawrence Dunbar's "A Confidence."

Election of officers resulted as follows: Master, Amos Satterthwaite; overseer, George H. Yerkes; lecturer, Mrs. Joseph Winder; steward, Frank H. Lake; assistant steward, William DeCon; chaplain, Mrs. Florence B. Dyer; treasurer, Jesse G. Webster; secretary, Mrs. Henry C. Pickering; Ceres, Mrs. Stanley Twining; Flora, Elizabeth Smith; gatekeeper, Edward Short; lady assistant steward, Marie Heston; executive committee, Henry C. Pickering, and finance committee, J. Howard Paxson.

The invitation of Tyro Hall Grange to hold the next meeting at its headquarters in Buckingham was accepted.

bomb fins, parachute flares, cartridge paper, fuses, into gas mask canisters, garbage cans, into helmets and targets. Then there are the hundreds of uses to which the public is well accustomed, letters and envelopes, posters, check-papers for military and government use, covers for war stamp and ration books.

Waste paper has gone to war and the Newspaper Committee is insistent that this newest and most vital salvage campaign be a huge success.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

It was not. True, it did throw the Treasury recommendations out the window, but it then took the view that the country could not stand any more taxes at this time; that the Treasury had overestimated the need; that much of the eight billions for which it refused to levy taxes can be met by economies in war expenditures. And it has sided—the sales tax just as the Treasury did.

HARDLY anyone pretends that this refusal of Congress to levy more taxes is not political. There is no real effort to disguise the fact that its attitude toward the sales tax is due to the imminence of a political campaign and the certainty that if Congress enacted a sales tax it would be accused by the President and the labor lobbyists of soaking the poor and protecting the rich.

On the eve of a campaign few members of Congress relish putting an argument such as this in the hands of their opponents. Consequently, they have met the Administration's political tax maneuvering with political tax maneuvering of their own. The result, of course, is a bill which shockingly disregards the national interests. Instead of imposing taxes that will raise the revenue required and diminish the danger of a crude and devastating inflation, we will get a bill—probably before January—that ignores the obvious needs and is as shameful as any tax measure ever passed.

lessly political as any tax measure well could be.

JOURNALISTIC defenders of the Administration denounce Congress for its political approach and Congressional leaders denounce the Administration for having made politics its first consideration. And, they are both right. It is a pretty dreadful thing to take the stand, as Congress has, that the country cannot bear any more taxes to support our fighting forces at this most critical period of the war. And it is equally bad to point out, as the Administration does, that the surplus money in the hands of the lower income brackets constitutes our great inflation danger, and then not only refuse to take a step toward decreasing that danger by increasing taxes on four fifths of the people but actually to propose relieving them of taxes now paid.

NONE of these things can be defended and the whole situation adds up to a national disgrace for which Congress—but not Congress alone—is responsible. The President and his Secretary of the Treasury share in that responsibility. Both sides talk one way and act another. Neither measures up to its patriotic proclamations nor puts the national interests ahead of political interests, though that is what they urge other people to do. This tax bill promises to be the most inadequate ever enacted. It is a sickening performance, which reflects discredit upon all concerned.

THERE is even no assurance that the perfectly sound provision requiring non-profit-making organizations to file annual statements with the Treasury will remain in the bill. The only opposition to this comes from labor lobbyists. No protest is heard from anyone else. It applies to Chambers of Commerce and fraternal organizations as well as to labor unions. It would seem that any organization with nothing to hide would welcome rather than oppose. Yet, to listen to these breast-beating labor professionals, one would imagine that this simple requirement was a dastardly attack upon the "rights of labor" designed by the "greedy rich" to destroy the unions. Actually, it would strengthen the unions and is favored, as a Gallup poll recently showed, by a majority of union men. But, unquestionably, it would cramp the style of some of the labor leaders, and the influence of these in Washington is such that it seems doubtful the provision will be retained. Should it be stricken out, then there will be literally nothing in the new tax bill to commend and the Congressional and administrative degradation will be complete.

Today's Quiet Moment (By the Rev. James R. Galley) Pastor Bristol Presbyterian Church

Eternal Father, in Whom we live and move and have our being, we give Thee thanks for thy constant provision of all our needs. We thank Thee for the rising of the sun, which gives us light and warmth. We thank Thee for the air we breathe, which sustains our lives in the flesh. We thank Thee for the homes in which we live, where we find rest and peace. We thank Thee for the necessities of life, such as food and raiment. All these things come to us from the hand of a loving Father, and we so frequently take them for granted. Accept our gratitude, O God, and make us continually grateful for thy constant mercies. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

as his sermon subject "A Good Soldier," basing his message on the words from 2nd Timothy, verse three of chapter two. The sermon for the juniors was entitled "Behind the Stars," the thought expressed by the clergyman being that the stars of the heavens might be regarded as "God's service flag" for us, his children, who are away from our heavenly home.

A roll call of names of all women and men from the Church and Sunday School who are serving their country was a feature, the total being 48. Provision was made on small forms for relatives of the servicemen to fill in their name and the particular relationship to a serviceman from the church. A message to that serviceman also appeared on the form, which the relatives signed. Copies of the messages which will show the men who represented them yesterday, as well as complete copies of the church bulletin will be forwarded each serviceman. Forty-one of the 48 were thus represented. In other instances the Sunday School servicemen were represented by the superintendent, and the church members by men of the session.

1st Lt. Harry Pedersen, 2nd Lt. Harry T. Chunn, and Miss Helen Beagle of the WAVES were in attendance.

One congregational hymn was "God Bless Our Men," this being written by E. Sparrow, of Cardiff, Wales. A moment of silent prayer was observed for those in the armed forces.

A special collection was received for Christmas gift packages for the servicemen.

Last evening three British sailors attended the church service, the pastor having met one of the trio in Philadelphia recently and extended an invitation to attend. The young man was accompanied to Eddington by two buddies.

greatest heroes of World War II performed his exploits and died a hero's death before the war started. He was R. J. Mitchell, whose life story is portrayed on the screen by Leslie Howard in "Spitfire."

Mitchell was a designer of aircraft, and he began at his profession in the days of the Schneider Trophy international air races. In those times, when the cumbersome biplanes were considered miraculous if they achieved a speed of 140 miles an hour, Mitchell had a vision of planes built like birds—monoplanes with fuselage and wings all of a piece—which would travel with incredible speed. Over a long period, and only after bitter fighting, was he able to make his dream a reality—in time to design and perfect the fabulous Spitfire fighter plane which saved Britain and helped shape the world from the Nazi menace.

Peter Hoffman started with the company 31 years ago, went to Chicago in 1914 and returned to Bristol in 1917. He is in the oropon department.

Plans of the Reading Railroad for improving the Market street grade crossing in Perkasie at an estimated cost of $1381 were approved by the Public Utility Commission.

The company proposed construction of concrete curbs, sidewalks and driveways as well as the relocation and lengthening of crossing gates. The Commission said the company had agreed to install reflector crossing signs to replace the existing non-reflector "when available."

The drive for funds for Grand View Hospital, Sellersville, which ended a few days ago, resulted in a total of $33,481.96 collected. It has been announced by William M. Meyer, chairman of the collection. The hospital's goal was $40,000.

Ground has been broken for the locker plant at Newtown. The Delaware Valley Lockers, Inc., announced that final priorities had been received and material was delivered on the job.

The new locker plant is located next to the Newtown Recreation Center on North State street and will contain about 500 lockers. Besides ample rooms for chilling, aging and sharp freezing, modern processing rooms and equipment will be installed and the plant will be the last word in this rapidly developing industry. Additional rooms at slightly higher temperatures will be available for the storage of apples, seed potatoes and other similar crops.

Churchill and Roosevelt Pledge To Stalin A Full Scale Invasion on Hitler

Roosevelt entirely successful in his demand that the Anglo-American armies bridge the English Channel and assault the German legions from the west.

All else was secondary in the minds of Stalin and the delegation which accompanied him to the ancient capital of Iran (Persia) for the momentous meeting.

The Soviet Marshal and his War Commissar, Klementi Voroshilov, came to the historic meeting ready to pledge an uninterrupted offensive against the Germans from the east. In acknowledgement, President Roosevelt and Britain's Prime Minister gave a written guarantee that the common enemy of mankind would be attacked with commensurate strength from the British Isles.

With the Soviet embassy in Tehran chosen as the meeting place, the four-day session opened on Sunday, November 28, and closed on Wednesday, Dec. 1. It was not until the leading conferees had departed for their respective capitals that a communique was issued in Cairo telling of it and confirming the announcement first made by the official Tass news agency in Moscow that the junction of minds, power, prestige and "crush Hitler" planning had occurred.

Of utmost significance was the implied bid to the smaller satellite nations of Europe to throw over the Hitler yoke and join with the democracies. Popular movements against the Nazi regime will be welcomed, the official statement pointed out, but there was no specific announcement with regard to future of the Baltic states and Finland.

"As to the war," the statement said, "Our military staffs have joined our round-table discussions and we have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces."

"We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations, which will be undertaken from the east, the west and the south."

"No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea and their war plants from the air."

"Our attacks will be relentless and increasing."

Absolute unanimity of the meeting was reflected in the words of the official declaration which said that the American president, the British premier and Soviet Russia's leader "have met these four days past in this capital of our ally, Iran, and have shaped and confirmed our common policy."

"We expressed our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that follows." The statement continued.

"The common understanding that we have reached guarantees that victory will be ours."

"Our concord will make for an enduring peace, we recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all of the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

"With our diplomatic advisers we have surveyed the problems of the future. We shall seek the co-operation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose people in heart and in mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny, slavery, oppression and intolerance."

"We will welcome them as they may choose to come into the world family of democratic nations."

Although this "open door" invitation was extended broadly to all nations, the sole specific guarantee of an independent status after the war is over was given to Iran, dispelling that country's fear of Russian political control or American sovereignty over the present supply line that runs through the ancient middle eastern kingdom.

There was no inkling in official statements as to whether Mr. Roosevelt or Churchill had wrung from Stalin a similar concession as regards the Baltic States or Finland.
